

April 2026 calendar notes. You know what they say about April right? April showers bring mud...

There are a few interesting notes on this month's calendar. On Friday April 3rd you'll see a reference to a Williams/neighborhood meeting. Neighbors at Proprietors Field and Highland Woods and apparently from the lower end of Southworth Street have indicated that there is noise emanating from the new sports facility, AKA the MRC, which recently opened adjacent to Southworth Street. Williams folks have indicated that they are working to resolve the issue and have engaged outside experts to identify and resolve the issue. We're hosting a meeting for all concerned parties to come together, listen, learn and possibly comment or make suggestions. The conversation will start at 4:00. There is no way of knowing how long the meeting will actually last. Sorry.

On Friday April 10th you'll see Dartmouth Program Amazon Incentive listed at noon. The Geisel School of Medicine at Dartmouth is developing an app designed to "transform the future of diagnosis for Alzheimer's Disease and related dementias". They're looking to recruit individuals manifesting early signs of dementia, already have a diagnosis and other healthy individuals with no dementia indicators to test the app. There is a web address- www.realvision-web-reach.lovable.app or email f006j5m@dartmouth.edu you can use to register to participate if you'd like and of course you are welcome to come here to register and find out about the program if you prefer. Participants will receive a $30 Amazon gift certificate for participating.

Finally, on Saturday April 25th you'll see Book Reading from 2:00 to 4:00. If you come here often enough or read our materials, you'll know that a group of locals met weekly on Wednesday afternoon to write and create short stories, poems and other bits of prose. These have been compiled into book-"Tales of Resilience" which the authors are pleased to share with you on this date. Everyone is welcome to join us and hears some wonderful wordsmithing by people you likely know. Refreshments? Of course!

Destiny will be here on the 6th, 13th and 27th to continue her series with the tablets, there's a special bingo hosted by Williamstown Commons at the Commons and haircuts by appointment on the 27th. The rest of the month is pretty normal scheduling.

Our annual Volunteer Appreciation luncheon is at noon on the 28th at the Williams Faculty Club-if you've volunteered to help us during the past year, you've been invited.

One more item; there are no appointments for the AARP Tax Aide season left but we're happy to take your next appointment beginning in, oh, about January 2027.
